

Current Assumption: Instance methods are navigable from LabelAssignment, but not the other way around. If we keep this bi-directional, we will be populating an ArrayList in Instance which will be never used in future. This design is easily changeable in next iterations. The same assumption is true for other one-way associations.